DECISION IS AGAINST TAGUE

Ballot Law Commission Rules Fitzgerald Is Nominee in the Tenth District

John F. Fitzgerald was today declared nominated as Democratic candidate in the Tenth Congressional District by the Massachusetts Ballot Law Commission.

The commission heard the evidence in the charges of Congressman Peter F. Tague, who alleged that Fitzgerald procured the nomination through fraud, and in making known its decision filed also a memorandum, telling of its conclusions and quoting the legal decisions upon which it based its decision.

This memorandum sets forth that had all the votes alleged to have been illegally cast for Fitzgerald been deducted from the total number of his votes the ultimate result would not have been affected.

The memorandum follows:

"The issues heard by us were illegal voting and alleged fraud on the part of the Election Commissioners of the city of Boston in conducting the re-

Norwegian Vessel Escapes Shells of U-Boat

An Atlantic Port, Oct. 29. — A Norwegian steamship arriving today reports that she fell in with two German submarines about 1,000 miles off the coast of France on October 21. She was shelled by one of the U-boats, but succeeded in escaping, and the raider turned its attention to a British and an American ship.

The next day the Norwegian sighted the periscope of another submarine about 400 yards away. The U-boat circled the ship and went away without offering to attack. Officers of the Norwegian were amazed, and their only explanation is that their ship was unarmed, was without cargo and appeared to be not worth sinking.

The first day of the campaign, if it is any criterion, sounds a welcome for Boston's poor. It is a welcome which they sadly need this year.

Gerrish, a clerk in the employ of the trustees, who testified today before Judge Murley in East Boston. Dr. Donlan is seeking reinstatement. Miss Gerrish is a witness for the trustees, who are seeking to justify their action. She also testified that she drew up the charges against Dr. Donlan and that the vote of the trustees by which he lost his position was unanimous.

In the days of the war, the Germans showed their most ingratiating to Americans; as time went on, however, and it became rent that public opinion in the United States almost unanimously supported the Allies, and that the Washington administration did not disregard the neutrality laws in order to promote German interest, this friendly attitude changed and became almost le.

ITALIANS CAPTURE 16,000

With Their Allies Are Across Piave and Vidor; Savage Battle on 40-Mile Front

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 29 (3:00 p. m.)—The German retreat before Generals Debeney and Mangin has been arrested and the enemy is fiercely counter-attacking, according to latest reports from the front.

The choicest troops of the enemy, aided by countless machine guns, are being thrown against the allies in a fight to the death to gain breathing time for the bulk of the German forces.

French critics express admiration for the stubbornness now being shown by the enemy, but they point out that General Lossberg is using up his best troops in these temporary actions.

Disaster has again overtaken the Austrians on the Italian front. The allies attacking fiercely over a front of nearly forty miles have smashed the last Austrian defense lines east of the Piave River, advanced five miles and captured 16,000 Austrians.

"BIG FOUR" AT VERSAILLES FRAMING TERMS FOR CENTRAL POWERS

USE OF AUSTRIAN RAILWAYS TO BE DEMANDED BY ALLIES

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Latest reports from Germany and Austria dealing with the political and military situations in the two countries were before the Cabinet this afternoon.

These reports, compiled by agents of the State Department, emphasized the unrest within the Central empires. Officials, however, have adopted an attitude of extreme reticence and refused to discuss impending developments.

It is felt that the situation is such that premature statements regarding diplomatic developments might prove extremely dangerous.

The latest Austrian note was looked for late today. It was not believed that there would be any immediate reply to it although, of course only the President and Secretary Lansing are in position to say just what will be done.

Meanwhile diplomatic sources were in receipt of many dispatches showing the constant development of the anti-government movements in all of the Teutonic territory. From Berne comes statement that several German functionaries, arriving at Vienna enroute to Berlin, reported that there was not a single German civilian left in Bucharest.

TO EVACUATE RUMANIA.

The German military authorities are sending to Germany all of the military stores there, and it is believed they are about to evacuate all of Rumania.

The efforts to organize a stable government in Hungary have apparently failed. The dissolution of Hungary now is believed to be certain, with the different nationalities organizing their own territory along racial lines.

The Berlin advices say that the German general headquarters has been forced to dissolve its press bureau because the newspapers complained that the information sent out was false.

The independent Socialists are said to be gaining the ascendency despite the efforts of the Socialists who have supported the government, to discredit them as Bolshevik sympathizers.

Ever since Dr. Liebknecht was set at liberty the agitation against the Kaiser and the government has been growing, according to dispatches reaching the French military attaches. The reports of general disorders in Berlin are confirmed. Discussing the situation, Vorwaerts says:

"Whether we are willing to what President Wilson and the foreign press have said, we must expect to be struck to the heart by the coming events. There will be a moment of passionate excitation and cries for a desperate struggle to the last, which will utter some of our feelings. But we will have to understand that what we must do now is to prevent further bloodshed.

"It is at the peace conferences that we should try to save and gain. The coming of a peace different from what we had expected can no longer be prevented. The only question is to make it come as soon as possible."

The center of international diplomatic moves had shifted today from Washington to Versailles.

The military authorities there representing the United States and all of the entente allies will have the next to the greatest power developments. They will tell Austria how she can secure an immediate peace on the basis of unconditional surrender. They will frame for the approval or veto of the "big four" of the supreme council and Field Marshal Foch, commander-in-chief of the allied armies, the ultimatum which must accompany every armistice with Germany.

The voting members of the "big four" are President Wilson, represented in person by Colonel E. M. House; Premier David Lloyd George of Great Britain, Premier Clemenceau of France and Premier Orlando of Italy. The vote of the President can be cast by Colonel House, but on matters of supreme importance it is expected to be cast by cable, as the White House will be in direct communication with Paris during all the deliberations.

TURKEY OUT OF WAR.

Official Washington today accepted as a fact that Austria and Turkey are out of the war. Turkey still is negotiating, but there is a complete lack of interest as to what the Ottoman government may or may not do.

The Turkish problem in one which after all must be settled at the peace conference which will fix for all future time the Balkan question that has kept all Europe in a turmoil for generations. Because of this fact there was little desire today on the part of officials here to discuss Turkey at all.

The Turk undoubtedly will be driven out of Europe, his dependent nationalities formed into nations along racial lines, and Constantinople and Dardanelles internationalized, that that all in the future. And the peace conference will decide how it will be done. The one thing of supreme interest here today was, what action will be taken to give Austria the peace she seeks and what guarantees must be demanded from her, many before there can be any further negotiations.

While Versailles, of course, will have the say of the two problems, there was much speculation here today on both. It was asserted that in the case of Austria the demands would be in many respects along the lines set forth when the Bulgarian question was disposed of.

With Austria about out of the war officials today for the first time were beginning to admit that possibly the end of the great conflict may be in sight. There still is a wide difference of opinion as to the German situation. Many officials here profess to believe that her appeals for peace are in the nature of camouflage and that the government still is continuing its endeavors to lure the allies into premature peace negotiations.

However, there is a growing belief in circles here quietly very well informed that, while his may have been the original intention of the German control, their hand has been forced by the increasing unrest at home and the continued defeat of their armies by the allied forces on the western front. The Socialists and other radicals are increasing their demands for peace at any cost and openly threatening the government, according to all information reaching this city while their leaders are openly defying the government.

Austria Must Accept Sweeping Terms

The terms upon which the allies will agree to grant Austria an armistice were outlined by officials at Washington today, as follows:

Immediate demobilization of her armies.

Guarantees that these troops will not be used against the Croats, the Slovenes, the Czechs or the Rumanians.

Free use of the Austrian national railways by the entente.

Occupation of all important Austrian fortified cities by international troops pending the calling of a peace conference.

Surrender to the allied forces of the big Austrian gun and munition centres so that the German supply of Austrian made war supplies would be ended.

Surrender to the allied Mediterranean naval forces of the big Austrian naval bases in the Adriatic, to be held until the peace council determines after war naval plans.

Granting permission for the movement of allied troops through Austria for such use against Germany as Marshal Foch may desire.

DANE PROBLEM WILL ARISE AT PEACE TABLE

Peril to Germany's Hold on Schleswig-Holstein and Even the Kiel Canal

The ghost of Hamlet's father is not its only one that ever bobbed up in Denmark.

There is a new "haint" from the land of the dane. It looms a menacing figure toward Schleswig-Holstein and thence to all Germany. Back of this spectre is a peril to Germany's hold on Schleswig-Holstein and even the Kiel Canal and Heligoland.

It is the ghost of a long-buried clause in the Prague Treaty of 1866. By this treaty Prussia acquired the duchy of Schleswig-Holstein. It was a characteristic Prussian "land-grab," practiced upon helpless Denmark.

Somebody stuck a bit of a clause in that treaty, however, which provided that the inhabitants of northern Schleswig should be granted a plebiscite or popular vote to decide whether they would return to their Danish allegiance or continue to enjoy political house with Germany. The clause read:

"The population of the north of Schleswig shall again be united with Denmark in the event of their expressing a desire so to be by a vote freely exercised."

But this vote has never been exercised "freely" or in any other way. In 1878 the plebiscite clause was abrogated from the treaty of five years before.

Now Denmark, according to press dispatches out of Holland, has sent a diplomatic hint to Germany that she would be a splendid time to rehone the long-buried plebiscite and see if it shows any signs of life.

DEMANDS PLEBISCITE.

The ghost then moved right along to Berlin and strode into the German Reichstag in the person of Deputy Hansen. The latter, in the name of the Danish population of Germany, rose in the Reichstag and demanded that this Schleswig plebiscite provision should be carried out.

This is not the first time that the Schleswig-Holstein proposition has been heard since the World War began. On January 8, 1917—an even year before President Wilson's "Fourteen Point" peace message—Sir Sam Hughes, former Canadian Minister of Defense, said at the Canadian Club of New York city:

The Kiel Canal must be free to the world and be unfortified. Schleswig-Holstein should go to Denmark." Sir Sam said there was a list of things Germany must give up.

Schleswig-Holstein comprises the peninsula connecting Denmark with Germany. It was ever a debatable frontier between the Germans and the Danes. In 1403 Schleswig on the north and Holstein on the south were united under one rule. In 1460 the Danish throne inherited the double territory as a duchy. It was solemnly agreed, moreover, that Schleswig and Holstein should never be politically divorced.

INGUED "OLD TREAT."

About the middle of the last century Germans and Denmarkwas pulling and hauling for the disputed frontier region. Denmark asserted that it was Schleswig and Holstein to go to the German Confederation. But Germany, probably figuring it would get both in the end, sai with a great assumption of politicalvirtue that the old agreement of 1460forbade such a division.

Then the Teutons of the Danes in the double Duchy irited a fight. Sympathizers rushedin from Denmark and Germany d a lively civil strife was underw when the European Powers apped them in 1850.

But it was only temprary. The old Danish royal line paid out in 1863. Prussia, led by Bis, drove the Danes out of Schleig-Holstein in 1864. Prussia and Austria ran the place jointly for twoears until they split on this and otl questions and the Seven Weeks' W was fought. Austria paid Prussiin indemnity of $15,000,000 and ded her rights in Schleswig-Holstein.So Prussia secured the territory the end. just as Bismarck had plnd.

MADE PART OF PSSIA.

This dispositionas effected at the Peace of Prag in 1866, which explains how the Seswig-Holstein question was settled the capital of Bohemia, after thFranco-Prussian War Schleswig-Hein was taken into the German spire as a part of the dominat Kingdom of Prussia.

The area of Schwig-Holstein is 7,340 square milesie size of New Jersey. The totalpulation of 1,920,000 is racially divid thus:

Germans—1,425,(89 per cent.).
Danes—450,000 per cent.).
Frisians (Dutch)—45,000 (3 per cent.).

Holstein is soll German. So is Southern Schles. The larger communities in thern Schleswig run about 10 pent. German, for Flensburg, the lest city in North Schleswig, is 5 per cent. Teuton. The upper classenerally all the officials in Sswig are German, and the Teuton element is the dominant one through the Schleswig as well as Holstein.

The 150,000 Danes are mainly farmers in the upper half of Schleswig.

The Frisians are also located in Schleswig, populating a strip of North Sea coast and nearby Frisian Islands. They live by farming and fishing. They lean politically toward the German side, but their slight numerical strength prevents them from being an important political factor.

DIFFICULT TO DECIDE.

When the Schleswig-Holstein problem comes up for final consideration at the end of the world war it will be no light matter to decide.

There are extremists among the Danes who claim all of both units for Denmark. But Denmark has less than 2,000,000 population. Annexation of Holstein as well as Schleswig to Denmark would mean the addition of about a million Teutons in Holstein alone, a difficult morsel for the Danish political digestion.

Annexation of all Schleswig would also entail a racial problem, for Schleswig is almost three-quarters German in population.

It has been suggested that Denmark be given the northern part of Schleswig, where the Danish element naturally centres.

Schleswig-Holstein, all or in part, is valuable to Germany for agricultural and strategic reasons, particularly the latter.

The district is noted for its stock-raising. Every New England country child knows that Holstein means those big black and white cattle whose milk-producing qualities make them believed fairest.

Strategically the land is one of the jewels in the German Crown of Empire. Is not the great artificial waterway known to the world at large as the Kiel Canal really named the Kaiser Wilhelm Canal?

OPENED IN 1895.

The Kiel Canal, opened in 1895, runs from Kiel, the chief city of Schleswig-Holstein, along a south-west course down to the mouth of the Elbe River on the North Sea coast. Thus it connects the North Sea with the Baltic, providing a tremendous cut-off in the old maritime course around the Danish peninsula.

The great canal is sixty-one miles long and is the most carefully guarded waterway in Europe. Germany spent more than $100,000,000 in making it. An army of men protects its banes, locks and basins.

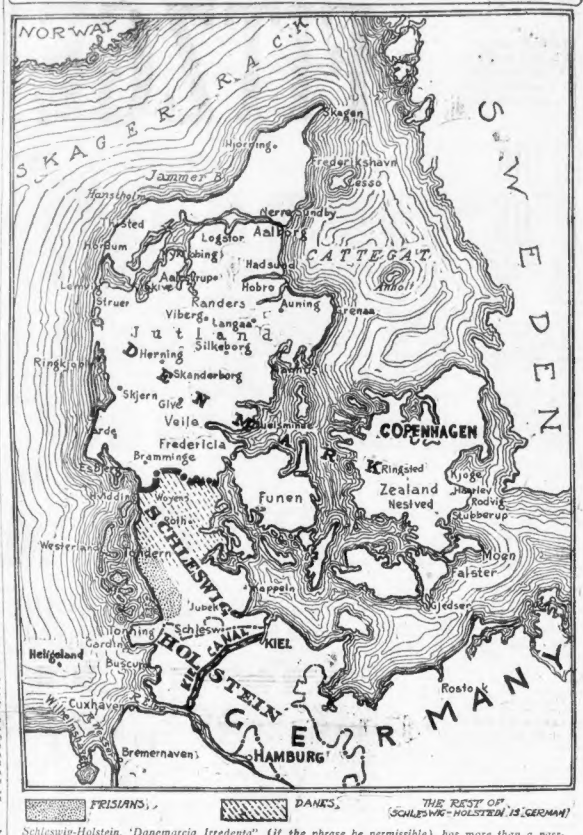
The huge locks at either end of the canal are 1,000 feet long, 157 feet wide and forty-five feet deep, so that the great war vessels of Germany may pass through.

Both the Kiel Canal and the German naval base of Heligoland, the fortified mass of rock fifty-five miles west of the North Sea and of the canal, are within the administrative limits of Schleswig-Holstein.

The canal follows the old boundary line between Schleswig and Holstein for about one-half its length, southwest from Kiel. Then the old boundary diverges northwest, while the canal continues southwest and then southerly to the broad estuary of the Elbe.

In this wonderful canal Germany has a fortified waterway, German from end to end, through which it can transfer its war vessels from the Baltic to the North Sea, or vice versa at will, and with no risk of attack in the journey. The canal, therefore, is one of Germany's biggest naval assets.

DENMARK AND LANDS LOST TO PRUSSIA HALF CENTURY AGO



Schleswig-Holstein, 'Danemarcia Irredenta' (if the phrase be permissible), has more than a passing interest for the citizens of the United States, who, whatever may be their ancestry, are in the main users of English. From these lands, anciently Jutland, the first speakers of Anglo-Saxon, came to conquer and settle in the southeastern part of England. "Jutes" they are generally termed in the school books, though some authorities would rather call them "Frisians," speaking a Platt-Deutsch (Low-German) tongue and bringing with them freedom in speech and custom, quite foreign to the Britons, tamed by centuries of Roman domination, to their island home. From Jutland, too, came the first story of Hamlet, the mad prince, which, by the genius of Shakespeare, has so enriched English literature, and the legend of William Tell, hero and type of freedom to the youth of all succeeding ages.

This is to invite you to assist in making the first Boston instalment of the greatest moving picture serial in the world, "Smiles Across the Sea."

If you have a soldier boy overseas and you live in Wards 5, 6, 7 or 8, under the direction of Draft Divisions 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8—THIS MEANS YOU!

In other words, if you are the sweetheart or relative of a soldier now fighting on the frontiers of freedom in France and reside in either the North, West or South Ends or the Back Bay District, as far west as St. Mary's street, you are cordially invited to appear in the pictures which will be sent to cheer our fighters overseas.

Relatives will make the pictures more inspiring by providing themselves with lettered signs and banners bearing personal greetings to their fighting boys.

Signs reading, "Hello, Daddy, here we are," "The family send love," "Hello, son, write us a letter," "Greetings from home," and with similar salutations, will be especially cheering to the soldiers. "Bring the family and bring a sign" is the slogan for all soldiers' relatives tomorrow.

"Close-ups" will be made of war-brides and all babies born since their daddies went to war.

THE SECOND INSTALMENT of "smiles" will be made next Saturday, November 2, at 2 p. m., near the elephant house at Franklin Park. This Saturday afternoon film-picture is open to all relatives of soldiers who live in Wards 16, 17, 18 and 19, which include a large part of Dorchester and Roxbury adjacent to Franklin Park.

THE THIRD GROUP of films depicting the beloved forms and faces of soldiers' relatives will be taken on Sunday, November 3, at 2 p. m., at Mission Hill Playground, Tremont street, near the Mission Church. This third chapter of the "Smiles Across the Sea" movie will include relatives residing in Wards 14 and 15, under the jurisdiction of Draft Divisions 14 and 15.

Other appointments, at the rate of three a week, during the next six weeks, will successively include in the "Smiles" film all soldiers' relatives in Boston and several suburbs.

Read the Boston AMERICAN every day to learn when your district will be filmed.

There is no expense connected with the taking of the pictures. All costs and responsibility will be assumed by William Randolph Hearst and the International Film Service, Mr. Hearst's great moving picture organization. Mr. Hearst considers it a privilege and a duty to be of service in such an inspiring undertaking.

If the weather is inclement Wednesday's pictures will be taken on Thursday, Saturday's pictures on Monday, and Sunday's film on the Tuesday following the advertised dates.

into the struggle. General March announced some weeks ago that American reinforcements were to be sent to Italy.

The allies have crossed both the Piave and Vidor, extending their positions steadily on the eastern banks. So far the Italians and British have borne the brunt of the assaults.

There is a temporary lull on the British front, although there is heavy fighting in the sectors held by the French and Americans.

The French are steadily smashing the apex of the German salient and are encircling the German base of Guise from both the south and north.

REACH MONTE CANO.

Advancing patrols have reached Monte Cano, according to unofficial reports. The new battlefront now extends east of Spinoncia and Rocandelle.

All night long troops passed over new bridges that were thrown across the Piave.

The operations of General Debeny's French army between the Oise and the Aisne have been crowned with signal success, and the Germans are steadily falling back toward the Brune River, a tributary of the Serre. The Germans may continue their retirement until the heights in front of Hirson are reached.

Hirson lies upon the most vital line of communication supplying the German armies in France.

VIOLENT GUN DUEL.

A violent artillery duel has been raging on the American front, following the new advance carried out on both sides of the Meuse River yesterday. The Americans are keeping up a steady bombardment of the Mezieres railway with some of the biggest guns the world has ever seen.

A new drive has been started by the British in Mesopotamia (eastern Turkey) in conjunction with General Allenby's drive past Aleppo.

Six Austrian Divisions Smashed; Two Italian Armies Across the Piave

London, Oct. 29.—The battle, which developed with the Italian drive last Thursday has already cost the Austro-Hungarians six divisions (72,000 men), according to a semi-official Italian statement issued today.

The Eighth army and the Tenth army have established bridgeheads east of the Piave river. Both armies pressed forward on a front of twelve miles each.

The Austro-Hungarians were led by chosen officers, and to inspire fear into the men machine guns were mounted in the rear to be turned upon any who retreated.

This is looked upon as the decisive struggle which has rested in the hearts and hopes of all Italy, the statement said.

The Austro-Hungarian army is contending with great stubbornness and is intact from political events.

Special correspondence was suppressed to prevent the soldiers from learning the real state of affairs at home and elements that became disaffected were put under the control of special leaders.

Allies Steadily Gain; Number of Prisoners and Guns Taken Grows

Rome, Oct. 29.—The battle on the Italian front continues fiercely, with the allies steadily gaining ground.

Prisoners and guns are mounting in numbers, but the new captures have not yet been counted.

The following statement was given out by the War Office today:

"The battle continued violently throughout the day and night on the fighting front.

"In spite of violent opposition, the twelfth and eighth armies have extended their bridgehead positions on the Noromic terrent.

"We gained advantage east of Grave di Papadopeli.

"British and Italian forces are nearing Monte Cano.

"The Italian and British broke through the enemy's defence, liberating Borgo Manolette, Terze Rain, Michesia de Riave, Cimedolmo, St. Colo di Piave, Lucidiapa and Vazzolo.

"The prisoners and guns have not yet been counted."

In a previous statement the War Office announced that 9,000 prisoners and fifty-one guns had been captured and that the British and Italians had advanced four miles east of the Piave River.

French Make New Progress in Movement to Encircle Guise

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 29.—Overcoming strong German resistance, the French have made fresh progress in the encircling movement around Guise, the War Office announced today. There was great artillery duelling during the night on the Oise front.

South of Guise the French are maintaining their contact with the enemy and are still going ahead. The text of the communique follows:

"There was rather heavy artillery firing in the region of the Oise and in front of Grand Verly.

"During the night, overcoming the resistance of the enemy, we made marked progress at Guise. Cantonments and the hospital were taken, and we have reached the station and the first line of trenches. South of the Chateau we have passed the Louvry farm.

"To the right elements of our troops continue to progress east of Morceau le Neuf, taking forty prisoners. On the Serre River front there was great machine gun and patrol activity, and everywhere we maintained our contact with the enemy.

"There is nothing of importance to report on the rest of the front."

German Casualties Amount to 100,000 in the Lys Salient

London, Oct. 29.—(British wireless press.)—The German casualties in the Lys salient alone amounted to more than 14,000 killed, 6,000 prisoners and 80,000 wounded and missing, according to authoritative calculation.

The Germans began preparations for the abortive offensive in the Lys salient in June. By the end of July they had brought up incalculable quantities of ammunition which finally they had only a fortnight to remove. The result was that in one area, five miles by three, the Germans abandoned 1,500 tons of ammunition.

On their railway, now in allied use, the Germans must have spent a quarter of a million dollars. Aerodromes and hospitals, on a large scale also had been erected and had to be abandoned.

French Troops Reach Peteghem and Cut Ghent Railway

By International News Service.

Havre, Oct. 29.—French troops have made notable progress along the right bank of the Lys River on the Flanders front, reaching Peteghem and cutting the Waereghem-Ghent railway, the Belgian War Office announced today.

Soldiers' Relatives Get First Labels for Xmas Boxes

The first batch of self-addressed labels for soldiers' Christmas boxes to reach the United States arrived today. The labels will be forwarded to relatives of soldiers in France selected by the boys themselves, and will be pasted on the offical boxes obtainable from local Red Cross headquarters. No charge will be made for the boxes to be sent overseas and only one box can be sent to a soldier.

Every man in the expeditionary forces has received one label, which, when forwarded to America to the relative from whom a package is expected, will be pasted on the special box in order to prevent any mistake in address.

Christmas parcels which do not bear the official label will be rejected by the War Department and no parcel will be accepted for shipment after November 20.

HOLLAND SAVED FROM BOCHE CLUTCH BY U. S.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Food Administrator Hoover declares that an offer to Holland by the United States of 1,000,000 tons of coal a month has furnished an effective lever for the Dutch in their relations with Germany.

"Holland is dependent upon Germany for coal, and they are able to exert some pressure on the Germans to obtain other needed supplies and certain concessions."

FISH DEALERS DENY PROFITS INCREASED

Several Boston retail fish dealers, testifying today before the Legislative Recess Committee investigating conditions in the fish business, declared that those who profess that they are the friends of the consumer are the only men who are making money as a result of the present high prices of fish.

Increased profits for one producer, together with the decrease of the catch for some but not only one the principal factors in the soaring high prices they said.

Burt W. Greer, one of the proprietors of the Gloucester Fish Market, said prices had advanced between 10 and 15 per cent over those of a year ago, but the consumer is making more profit today than when the lower prices prevailed.

As an instance of the attitude of the public toward fish, Mr. Greer said his firm has customers who in ordering steaks demand they be of cod, when as a matter of fact they are halibut, all of which tastes fine and nevertheless adds to the cost of the product.

Mr. Greer said conditions at the fish piers in Boston during the past summer had "smashed" as a result of the fish monopoly, and many were doing and now being conducted by the recess committee.

Michael F. Foley, one of the M. F. Foley Company, said no company tried the experiment in fishing engaged such as a considerable number of men but found no demand for it as the purchasing public insisted upon "the best there was."

LAWSON'S DAUGHTERS ENTER WALSH LISTS

Everybody's doing it—battling against Senator John W. Weeks. The latest verbal gladiator to enter the lists is Thomas W. Lawson's daughter, Mrs. Marion Lord of Brookline, who has taken up her dad's campaign to dethrone "Big Daddie" where he was forced to leave off when his automobile incident recently and sprained him with two broken ribs and a swollen collar bone.

Mrs. Lord explained that while her distinguished dad is doing well, he is not yet able to campaign. Not only is she out against Mr. Weeks therefore, but her younger sister, Hester, has also entered the struggle in the fight.

Conner against his wife Margaret, who resided with Detention, Colonel who was drafted from Michigan, did not appear. Herbert E. Sanderson was given a decree against her husband Frederick, who married her in August, 1914. Mrs. Sanderson now lives on Pembroke street, Boston.

War Summary

The achievements of the American artillerymen north-east of Verdun and the gains made by the Italians are outstanding features of the day's war news. The precision of action in what makes both more remarkable, rather than the immediate damage accomplished in one or the amount of territory regained in the other.

Military critics are hailing more brains and brawn lucky in its own specialty or coordination since the Allies adopted the principle of unity of command. Each thing seems to bring down on all fronts descends perfectly with all other actions, and the American shells are falling on the German railroads, not as much for the purpose of killing a few or many enemy soldiers as to oblige a withdrawal of the armies to the north of the Valenciennes area and in Belgium. British troops operating in the southern portion of the former sector pressed the enemy back slightly, but the chief resistance has so materially stiffened that it is doubtful if a frontal attack in this region would bring results commensurate with its cost.

By cutting off the supplies and reinforcements of the Germans now operating there the result must be secured at a minimum of expense, and that is precisely what the American artillery is doing.

The predominance of the United States guns is having effect, too, along the Meuse, where the Germans are reported as hastily throwing no additional fortifications in act around Metz. The enemy high command is fearful of an attack by the Americans and the great fortress which commands the coal and iron regions of Lorraine and is accumulating its three in this sector even while political Berlin is in process of transformation.

The Italians achieved a notable victory on the southern part of the Piave, the hotel Montello, where, in conjunction with British troops, they effected a crossing of the river and forced an enemy retreat of four miles. Montello has all along been regarded as the key of the Austrian offensive along the Piave and its virtual isolation can be regarded in no other light than the beginning of the breaking of their battle line.

Further successes have been scored by the British in Asiatic Turkey. This time General Marshall's army comes into action. The British Mesopotamian forces are pushing on far north as Kerduk, near the Persian border and 150 miles north of Bagdad. Soon to be forty on the way to clean the Turks out of Armenia as well as the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris.

The Austrians are still falling back in the Balkan region, the Italian army operating in Albania having forced the enemy's line back almost to the borders of Montenegro.

'GOING UP" A RICH HARVEST OF FUN AND GOOD TUNES

By FRED J. McISAAC.

When James Montgomery wrote "The Aviator," aeroplanes were a novelty and airmen so rare as to be curiosities. Their principal occupation consisted of soaring the Rubes at County Fairs.

Today we have more than one hundred thousand young Americans enlisted in our Aviation Corps, while on the Western front something like twenty thousand air machines are operated by the contending armies.

You would suppose that the tribulations of a man who claimed to be an aviator and wasn't, wouldn't interest a public whose regular reading consists of experiences of aviators who hide behind clouds and shoot down either aviators.

Nevertheless, "Going Up," a musical version of the veteran farce was one of the season's successes in New York, and it entertained a very large audience at the Colonial Theatre last night.

The truth is that the public is now so sophisticated upon the subject of aviation that it chuckles at the artificial difficulties of the fake flyer on the stage, where a few years ago it didn't understand them any more than the properties of radium.

The idea of "Going Up," is that Frank Craven, a particularly meek and timid creature, has written a novel which described the perils of aviation so skillfully that people supposed he was an aviator himself. In order to bask in the admiration of a large eyed maiden impersonated by Edith Day, he permitted that to be inferred, when in fact he didn't know a gas engine from a guy rope.

Of course the arrival of a bona-fide aviator places him in a sad situation. A race is arranged. He is shamed into consenting. The most amusing scene in the piece is the lesson in aviation which he takes seated in an chair placed on a table to give the effect of being in space.

With the aid of an aeroplane mechanic secretly promoted he learns enough to take his plane into the air, but once up he forgets how to come down and remains aloft until long after dark. Meanwhile the persecuted aviator gives up the contest and comes down because he cannot fly after dark.

If this were not enough to betray the antiquity of the farce in view of the fact that aeroplanes now do all their most effective work at night nothing can do so, but the public doesn't appear to mind.

Finally, the amateur aviator lands safely through the same agency which enables the authors to get away with the plot.

The gentleness of Frank Craven, his inimitable nights, his ability to be most amusing when most deeply in misery, these things all help along the popularity of the piece, together with the sweetness and daintiness of Edith Day.

Miss Day, who was last seen here in "His Little Widow," is a very de cidedly little person, with a rich and mellow soprano, which she uses competently. She struck the audience like an arrow from a bow. Miss Rumshinsky, part of the vaudeville team of Tempest and Sunshine, is equally pretty and even more talented as a dancer.

Louis A. Hirsch, whose previous compositions have not been of the distinctive melodies or ingenious orchestration, has done his very best work on the score of "Going Up." There are a dozen melodies that are so catchy that the public cannot refrain from whistling them and they would put over a much worse piece than "Going Up."

PARK THEATRE—Theda Bara, as a siren who is regenerated through love for a young divinity student, is the magnet which drew capacity houses to the Park last night. "The Woman Sins," a Theda Bara superproduction at the Park, is now in its second week, which is a headline attraction all this week.

In this production Miss Bara gives a performance of telling power and poignant appeal. The picture relates how a fashionable "vamp," one who, unjustly accused, becomes a notorious character, is redeemed by a humble but heroic lover. But though all her devious career she continues to love Michael, the young cleric, even though he cuffs her again and again.

"Unexpected Places" a Metro Photoplay in six acts featuring the popular Bert Lytell, is also on the bill.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—As all-star vaudeville bill was offered yesterday at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. Special mention is deserved by Edmund & Leedom in their musical skit, "Going to the Wedding." Harvey De Vora Trio won many plaudits for their spectacular singing and dancing numbers, and Ethel Lee to Slamms' proved to be one of the cleverest and funniest one-act farces now in vaudeville.

Other acts were Bert Swor & Cleveland, in songs and comedy; Billy De Vere, singer and comedian; Frank & Alice Wilson in the screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a new Mack Sennett comedy, "Bowara of Boarders," and the photoplay, "Such a Little Pirate," a charming story of a hunt for treasure trove.

WALDRON'S CASINO—"The Best Show in Town" is the current attraction at Waldron's Casino with two performances daily. This really fine screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a new Mack Sennett comedy, "Bowara of Boarders," and the photoplay, "Such a Little Pirate," a charming story of a hunt for treasure trove.

WALDRON'S CASINO—"The Best Show in Town" is the current attraction at Waldron's Casino with two performances daily. This really fine organization is one of James E. Cooper's quartet of shows for the season. Frank Hunter heads the list of the funmakers and he is a success. The choice of Lucille Little more fire producer of Hunter, for he and his work are well known to all patrons of Waldron's Casino.

19 NEW GRIP CASES IN NAVAL DISTRICT

New cases of influenza took a jump today in the First Naval District. Nineteen new cases were reported, the largest number in seven days in this district. There was one death registered. This makes the total number of cases of the epidemic in this district 3,942. Hingham Training School reported two, Rumford Island three, Radio School, Cambridge, six; Receiving Ship one, Little Building one, and Aviation Detachment, Cambridge, five. The increase in new cases was largely attributed to the new units coming from other places.

HEALTH BOARD GIVES WARNING OF INFLUENZA DANGER

Ask People to Be Careful and Take Proper Treatment Promptly. Many Pneumonia Cases Follow Influenza. What to Do.

To be prepared for the serious outbreaks of Influenza and Pneumonia that are now sweeping over the entire country and that have seized on this community Public Health Boards everywhere are issuing cautions and instructions to the public not to neglect treatment at the first symptoms of a cold and to co-operate with health boards and physicians in stamping out the spread of the disease.

No disease develops so quickly or spreads so rapidly. The first symptom usually is a sharp rise in temperature to 101 or 102 degrees, headache, pain in the back, throat feeling dry or sore. Unless promptly checked by proper treatment the best plan is to go to bed and nurse there for at least a week. Keep warm to avoid pneumonia and let the minor ailment run its course and also prevent the spread of the disease to others.

Most of us in these busy days, cannot afford, if it can be avoided, to lose a week or more of work so it is all the more necessary that at the very first sign of grip or influenza a counter-acting treatment should be taken.

Probably no better or more effective treatment could be followed at such a time than to get from the nearest drug store a complete Hyomei outfit consisting of a bottle of the pure Oil of Hyomei and a little vaporizer, hard rubber inhaling device into which a few drops of the oil are poured.

Put the Inhaler in your mouth and breathe its pure pine balm into the passages of your nose, throat and lungs. Every particle of air that enters your breathing organs will thus be charged with an antiseptic healing balsam.

You can't do this too often. The Hyomei Inhaler is small and can be conveniently carried in a hand-bag or in your waterproof. Every half hour or so throughout the day take it out and draw a few breaths of its pure healing air into your nose and throat. The outfit is not at all expensive for the rubber inhaler will last a lifetime while the Oil of Hyomei can be obtained at little cost from any reliable druggist. Lots of people already have a Hyomei Inhaler. Take it out, charge it and use it without delay. If you haven't one get it today.

A few cents spent now may easily prevent sufferer illness and save you many dollars and help stamp out the spread of the disease.—Advertisement.

WALSH SCORES SENATOR WEEKS AS FOE OF LABOR AND ITS FRIENDS

BRANDEIS VOTE IS CITED

Senator Weeks of the enemy of labor because he voted against labor and the friends of labor, ex-Governor David I. Walsh told a gathering of workers at the Bliss Machinery Company at Beverly today. He cited the action of Senator Weeks in voting against Louis D. Brandeis, and said:

"John W. Weeks misrepresented the attitude of the people of Massachusetts when he voted to the senate June 1, 1916, against the confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis as a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

The ex-governor addressed an enthusiastic and largely attended rallies at Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill at which Mr. Weeks was opposed, progressive measures demanded by the great body of the people were urged.

Mr. Walsh declared that if Senator Weeks had had his way he would have added a tax upon every month-ful of bread consumed by the people of Massachusetts by raising the price of wheat to $2.50 per bushel, which Herbert Hoover had declared $2.25 a fair price to producer and consumer alike.

This not alone on the part of Senator Weeks if successful, would have cost the people of Massachusetts over eight million dollars yearly and the people of the nation the staggering sum of $387,000,000.

Directing his attack upon the attitude of Senator Weeks toward the friends of labor, ex-Governor Walsh showed how the former had attempted to defeat the confirmation of Brandeis. He said:

"In January, 1916, President Wilson sent to the Senate the nomination of Mr. Brandeis, and the people of this Massachusetts citizens, and one of the leaders in progressive movements which have given rise to the great interest and increased the conditions of labor, Mr. Brandeis has often called upon to settle industrial disputes and allowed in his action in every case his love of fairness and justice.

"Everybody remembers just what all else had failed to accomplish in the settlement of the street railroad workers' strike in Boston in 1912, when thousands of working girls were struggling for a living wage.

"Every social worker and every active leader in the successful campaigns to reduce the hours of labor for women, to prevent the Boston Elevated Railway from wrecking control of the subways for a 99-year period.

"The late Chief Justice Fuller said of Mr. Brandeis that he was the ablest man who had appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States in his time.

"The Brandeis nomination was held up in the Senate for months, and all business was against his confirmation because the bankers and manufacturers knew Mr. Brandeis' fearlessness, and his activity for progressive and labor legislation had forced upon them the fact that his sympathies were with the plain people.

"When, after extended committee hearings a vote was reached June 1, 1916, Mr. Weeks could not bring himself against his confirmation. What a humiliating exposure it was to the masses of the people when the senate sets to see one of their most active champions denied the seat in the United States Senate by a vote, while a majority of Senators from the several states of continental size cast votes which confirmed his appointment.

"Should Mr. Weeks be re-elected to the Senate to continue his opposition to progressive legislation and to use his influence to deny great leaders like Mr. Justice Brandeis the opportunity to serve their country in the high places in the people's government."

Daniels Hits Weeks for Blocking Way to Victory

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, speaking at Hartford, Ct., said:

"From the day the United States entered the war unto this hour the neck of the bottle has been and is ships. The number of soldiers sent and to be sent to France was measured only by the tonnage.

"In the light of the gigantic achievements of the Shipping Board, who will say that if Senator Weeks and his formidable array of Republican Senators had not blocked the way for nearly two years the victory which is now in sight would have long since been achieved."

Working Women's Committee Attacks Weeks' Record

Ex-Governor Walsh has given his enthusiastic approval to a circular issued by the Working Women's Committee in the interests of the Democratic Senatorial campaign. The several points of the circular are the following facts, culled from the record of Senator John W. Weeks.

DOES WEEKS REPRESENT YOU?

NOT if you are a soldier or sailor or a member of his family, because he voted to reduce the war insurance from $10,000 to $7,500 and voted against the Soldiers and Sailors' Educational bill.

NOT if you are a wage earner, because he voted against the Sundry Civil Appropriations bill exempting labor unions from prosecution in their fight for increase wages, shorter hours and better conditions.

NOT if you are a believer in government control, because he voted against the Army Appropriations bill of 1915 protecting the worker from the stop watch and speeding-up system.

NOT if you are a believer in the eight-hour principle, because he voted against the Adamson bill giving the eight-hour day to railroad employes, the entering wedge for a universal eight-hour day.

NOT if you are a farmer, because he voted against the Sundry Civil Appropriations bill protecting farmers who organize for the purpose of maintaining a fair and reasonable price for their products, and voted against increasing the weight of parcel post packages.

NOT if you are a seaman, because he voted against the seaman's bill which protected wages and hours of labor and promoted safety at sea by providing a standard number of lifeboats.

NOT if you are a believer in democracy, because he voted against the suffrage amendment.

President Wilson said: "We have made partners of the women in this war. Shall we admit them only to a partnership of suffering and sacrifice and tell and not to partnership of privilege and right?"

LONG ASKS WHAT COOLIDGE HAS DONE IN WAR

A challenge to Calvin Coolidge, the Republican nominee for Governor, to come out and tell the voters of Massachusetts who he represents and what he stands for was hurled by Congressman John A. Peters, Democratic nominee for the same office, at enthusiastic rallies at Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill. Mr. Long declared that the only thing Mr. Coolidge had accomplished in his term as Governor was to act as a recruiting officer and war contractor and that he was ready to meet him on this issue or any other issue he might raise.

"Coolidge is a war time war contractor, having given work to hundreds of people at a good wage and has used his office to help secure enlistments," he said. "What has Mr. Coolidge done to help win the war? He is incapable of constructive service, did not occupy more than two or three hours a week of his time and did not go to the front in France."

Mr. Haverhill, a prominent Republican told Mr. Long after the meeting, was the largest held there for several years. It was full of enthusiastic, too. In Lowell, Odd Fellows' Hall was so crowded that an overflow meeting was held, and in Lawrence the candidate was given an enthusiastic reception and a big meeting at the Lyric.

SAYS "FREE SPEECH" DENIED.

Mr. Long said during the course of the rallies:

"Massachusetts wants a Governor, not a figurehead.

"The most astounding act in the recent history of Massachusetts politics was the arbitrary refusal of the machine leaders to call a convention to nominate a Democratic candidate for one of their party and who are the only real issue of importance. It is to ask about a platform expressive of views by issues and the principles of the party.

"In the language of a distinguished Senator of their own party they have denied the right to the regularly-elected delegates to the regularly-elected delegates the right of free choice in their party affairs. Their excuse to party and ownership of a political party. That they have the right to the election of the delegates, chosen by the people, on the vital issues of the day is ridiculous.

"The party has no platform. It has no principles. The candidates are left in the position of men merely running for office. The candidates for Governor declined to take a definite stand on any of the issues, but seemingly prefers to take refuge behind the skirts of the Republican State Committee, boss-owned and boss-controlled.

REPLIES TO BACON.

"What does he stand for? Who will be the real Governor of Massachusetts? The chairman of the boss-controlled machine or the candidate suggests he served so faithfully as president of the senate? Will the executive office be run by wire from New York? Will Wall street resume charge and week again our railroads and street railways which were looted and destroyed under the provision of the laws which were forced through our legislature when he was so prominently in its councils?

"If his sponsor, Mr. Bacon, wants to talk war services, let him tell of his own. He can readily ascertain from the War Department that at the outbreak of the war we, without delay, stripped our factories of all shotguns and turned our entire supply over to the government.

"Not a gun was left," as declared. "I sent a telegram to every member of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress asking in which I said to them: 'I hope that the privilege of paying the expense of the war will be allowed largely to those persons and companies paying income taxes.' The great burden of the war will fall largely upon the rich and the of Americans, and the financial burdens should be unified principally by those that can afford to pay. For those having substantial or large incomes a tax of 50 per cent would be no great hardship.

"That my attitude in this matter was taken favorably with the record of my opponent is, I feel, evidenced by the fact that when a member of the Legislature he voted against the income tax amendment.

"I am in favor of President Wilson for the passage of the Federal reserve banking law, the rural credits act, the Clayton anti-trust law, the income tax law and the child labor law are matters of record. I am in favor of giving the soldier voters of this state my attitude on vital questions. With such record the Democratic party has held its convention and made known its principles through a public platform, I am proud to stand upon which I am proud to stand.

"What has Mr. Coolidge done, either before or since the war? Mr. Coolidge, come out from your hiding place and tell the voters what you stand for and what you represent."

TRADESWOMEN ARE OUT AGAINST WEEKS

The women wage-earners are out against Senator John W. Weeks.

"Having in mind the political record of Senator Weeks and the effect of a similar record for six more years," Mrs. Nellie M. Curtis, chairman of the women have organized under the name of "Workingwomen's Committee to Defeat Weeks."

Three separate groups of women wage-earners are behind the drive. The first composed of Vice-President Sends of the American Federation of Labor; Joseph Ryan, organizer, Miss M. McKnight of the Waitress' Union, and Miss Agnes Gallagher of the Boston Cigar Factory Union, all of Springfield and are touring the western counties.

The second, headed by John J. Welch of the State Association of Painters, Miss Mabel Foley of the Boston Waist Makers' Union, and Miss Margaret Cleary of the Textile Workers of Ludlow left New Bedford and will speak at the industrial centres between there and Worcester.

The third party, under the management of William H. Francoe of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, includes Miss Anna Wenderoth of the Boston Neckwear Workers' Union and Mrs. Wilcox of the Boston Stenographers' Union. They left Newburyport and will campaign in the manufacturing centres of the State.

The three parties will conduct a joint tour of Worcester, Thursday, and will finish their campaign in Boston next Monday night.

G. O. P. BLAMED FOR R. I. CAR CONDITIONS

By CHARLES O. POWER

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—Yesterday's rioting, caused by the public sentiment on the state political campaign. The people I chatted with did not know me, nor did I know them. It seemed to me that they talked freely and openly because they were talking to a stranger, a casual visitor and inquisitive enough for his friends.

The first place visited was a barber shop. The barber was a good one, clever of blade and tongue. We talked about the war and then I asked him for a look to get to Pawtucket by street car and how much it cost. He told me and then added that if he was going he would go by train. To my request for further information he gave me a great deal, but talk is the interesting part!

ALL TALKING DEMOCRATS.

"When I was a young fellow I belonged to a club that had some members who thought they were talented. Ever hear an amateur Clifton Crawford try to spell 'The Tramp' that started off each beginning 'Let me sit down a minute, a stone's got in my shoe'? Well, we had a bird could spell it. Of course, you've heard 'The Face on the Barroom Floor' and 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight.' But there was one guy who used to make a big hit with me. He used to get off a recited little bit about a poor chap who was on his way from coast to coast and he started in to run up against hard-hearted trainmen and conductors who would refuse to give him a lift along the way. Whenever he asked them to be good to him they would always say really, 'Walk, you sucker, walk.'

"Well, that's us. They have raised the street car fares so that many of us have got to walk or, if we get tired of that, ride. We are a walk but I've got to move the family to town. And I'm going to do a little walking on election day. I do something else I don't very often do—work for the Democrats. You know, there's a reason. And believe me, there are several thousand others like me.

BLAMES REPUBLICANS.

The policeman and I had quite a talk, but what he said about politics could be condensed in a few words. He is a lot of people blaming the Republican party for the high street car fares, the high cost of gas, and it's my opinion the Democrats are going to get a raft of votes that would go to the other fellows. It would not surprise me to see 'em win.

A clerk in a cigar store talked politics interestingly. He knew I was from Boston and he told me that Jack Dave Shean played a great game for the Red Sox and he told me a lot of other facts I was proud of Dave. And so was fair to fan, he told me that, no matter what the Democrats did, no matter what they do about the street railway situation, they were too late. He thought they should have found and made definite promises weeks ago of what they would do, and he had heard many citizens say they were going to give the Democrats a chance to make good.

"That looks good for O'Shaunessy, too, for United States Senator," he said.

Then there was the street car conductor. "All I've got to say about the situation," he said, after I had asked him a few inherent questions, "is this: I would feel more sure of steady work and decent pay, regardless of there was state ownership. Things cannot go on as they are much longer. People will not pay the price, and the still higher fares would not help. I believe it would be better for all concerned, the men especially, if the system was on a sound basis. Many reasonable things are now being never talked before and all of them are for State ownership."

The above is submitted for what it is worth, and without comment.

TWO-ALARM FIRE DOES DAMAGE OF $15,000

The North Station bowling alleys and V. Bonzagni's liquor store at No. 229 to 224 Friend street were damaged to the extent of $15,000 early today. The fire which for a time threatened surrounding wooden structures. Two alarms were sounded.

LAWRENCE'S MILL STRIKE IS GROWING

Lawrence, Oct. 29.—The Arlington Mills strike is growing and today it is estimated more than 3,000 operatives are out of work. The speckers and winders joined the dyers and finishers. They demand an increase of 25 per cent.

MORGENTHAU REVEALS HOLY WAR PLOT

The significance to which the German ambassador constantly returned with insistent iteration was the old familiar one—the sale of American ammunition to the allies. I hardly need say from that he did not speak about it.

He was constantly asking me to write a President Wilson, urging him to declare an embargo; of course, my contention that the commerce in munitions was entirely legitimate made no impression.

Toward the end, as the Dardanelles became more intense, Wangenheim's insistence on the subject of American ammunition grew. He asserted that most of the shells used at the Dardanelles had been made in America, and that the United States was really waging war on Turkey.

TO HOLD U. S. "ACCOUNTABLE."

One day, more angry than usual, he brought me a piece of shell. On it clearly appeared the inscription "B. S. Co."

"See that?" he said. "I suppose you know what B. S. Co. means? That is the Bethlehem Steel Company. This will make the Turks furious. Remember that we are going to hold the United States responsible for it. We are getting more and more proof, and we are going to hold you to account for every death caused by American shells. If you would only write home and make it then stop selling ammunition to our enemies, the war would be over very soon."

I made the usual defence, and asked Wangenheim's attention to the fact that Germany had sold munitions to Spain in the Spanish war, but all that was to no purpose. All that Wangenheim saw was that American supplies formed an asset to his enemy; the legalities of the situation did not interest him. Of course I refused point blank to write to the President about the matter.

A few days afterward an article appeared in the Islam discussing Turkish and American relations. The contribution, for the greater part, was extremely complimentary to America; its real purpose, however, was to contrast the present with the past, and to point out that our action in selling munitions to Turkey's enemies was hardly in accordance with the historic friendship between the two countries.

The whole thing was evidently written merely to get before the Turkish people a statement almost parenthetically included in the final paragraph. "According to foreign correspondents at the Dardanelles it appears that most of the shells fired by the British and French during the last bombardment were made in America."

ALUMNI GERMAN DENIAL.

At this time the German Embassy controlled the Islam, and was conducting it entirely in the interest of German propaganda. Statement of this sort, instilled into the minds of impressionable and fanatical Turks, might have the most deplorable consequences. I therefore took the matter up immediately with the man whom I regarded as chiefly responsible for the attack—the German Ambassador.

At first Wangenheim asserted his innocence; he was as bland as a child in protesting his ignorance of the whole affair. I drew his attention to the fact that the statements in the Islam were not essentially the same as those with he made to me a few days before that the language in of certain spots indeed, was almost a repetition of his own conversation.

"Either you wrot that article yourself," I said, "or you called in the reporter and gave him the leading ideas."

Wangenheim saw that there was no use in further denying the authorship.

"Well," he said, tlwing back his head, "what are yo going to do about it?"

This "tweed-like attitude rather nettled me and I replied it on the spot.

"I'll tell you whatam going to do about it," I replied and you know that I will be able to carry out my threats. Either you stop stirring up anti-American feelin in Turkey or I shall start a campaign of anti-German sentiment here."

THREATENS U. S. STORY.

"You know, Hare I added, "that you Germans are acting on very thin ice in this country. You know that the Turks don't love you any too well. In fact, you know that Americans are more popular here than you are. Supposing that I go out, tell the Turks how you are simply using them for your own benefit—that you do not really regard them as your allies, but merely as pawns in the game which you are playing.

"Now, in stirring up anti-American feeling here you are touching my most sensitive spot. You are exposing our educational and religious institutions to the attacks of the Turks. No one knows what they may do if they are persuaded that their relatives are being shot down by American bullets. You stop this at once, or in three weeks I will fill the whole of Turkey with animosity toward the Germans. It will be a battle between us and I am ready for it."

Wangenheim's attitude changed at once. He turned around, put his arm on my shoulder and assumed a most conciliatory, almost affectionate, manner.

"Come, let us be friends," he said. "I see that you are right about this. I see that such attacks might injure your friends, the missionaries. I promise you that they will be stopped."

From that day the Turkish press never made the slightest unfriendly allusion to the United States. The anonymous Turkish attacks also stopped showed me that the Germans had evidently extended to Turkey one of the cherished expedients of the Fatherland—absolute government control of the press. But when I think of the infamous plots which Wangenheim was investigating at that moment, his objection to the use of a few American shells by English battleships—if English battleships use any such shells, which I seriously doubt—seems almost grotesque.

PLANS FOR "HOLY WAR."

In the early days Wangenheim had explained to me one of Germany's main purposes in forcing Turkey into the conflict. He made this explanation quietly and nonchalantly, as though it had been quite the most ordinary matter in the world.

Sitting in his office, puffing away at his big black German cigar, he unfolded Germany's scheme to arouse the whole fanatical Moslem world against the Christians. Germany had planned a real "holy war" as one means of destroying English and French influence in the world.

"Turkey herself is not the really important matter," said Wangenheim. "Her army is a small one, and we do not expect it to do very much. For the most part it will act on the defensive. But the big thing is the Moslem world. If we can stir the Mohammedans up against the English and Russians, we can force them to make peace."

What Wangenheim evidently meant by the "big thing" became apparent on November 13th, when the Sultan issued his declaration of war; this declaration was really an appeal for a Jihad or a "Holy War" against the infidel. Soon afterward the Sheik-ul-Islam published his proclamation, summoning the whole Moslem world to arise and massacre their Christian neighbors.

THE CALIPH'S PROCLAMATION.

"O Moslems!" concluded this document. "Ye who are smitten with happiness and are in the verge of sacrificing your life and your goods for the cause of right, and of braving perils, gather now around the Imperial throne, obey the commands of the Almighty, who, in the Koran, promises us bliss in this and in the next world; embrace ye the foot of the Caliph's throne and know ye that the state is at war with Russia, England, France, and their allies, and that these are the enemies of Islam. The Chief of the believers, the Caliph, invites you all as Moslems to join in the Holy War."

At the time Wangenheim discussed the matter with me, his chief interest seemed to be that a "Holy War" of this sort could be the quickest means of forcing England to make peace.

According to this point of view, it was really a great peace offensive. At that time Wangenheim reflected the conviction, which was prevalent in all official circles, that Germany has made a mistake in bringing England into the conflict and it was evidently his idea now that if back fires could be started against England in India, Egypt, the Sudan, and other places, the British Empire would withdraw. Even if British Mohammedans refused to rise, Wangenheim believed that the mere threat of such an uprising would induce England to abandon Belgium and France to their fate.

To be continuded tomorrow.

Wangenheim Tells Why Turkey Was Drawn Into War

In the early days Wangenheim had explained to me one of Germany's main purposes in forcing Turkey into the conflict.

"Turkey herself is not the really important matter," said Wangenheim. "Her army is a small one, and we do not expect it to do very much. For the most part it will act on the defensive. But the big thing is the Moslem world. If we can stir the Mohammedans up against the English and Russians, we can force them to make peace."

What Wangenheim evidently meant by the "big thing" became apparent on November 13th, when the Sultan issued his declaration of war; this declaration was really an appeal for a Jihad or a "Holy War" against the infidel. Soon afterward the Sheik-ul-Islam published his proclamation, summoning the whole Moslem world to arise and massacre their Christian neighbors.

THE CALIPH'S PROCLAMATION.

"O Moslems!" concluded this document. "Ye who are smitten with happiness and are in the verge of sacrificing your life and your goods for the cause of right, and of braving perils, gather now around the Imperial throne, obey the commands of the Almighty, who, in the Koran, promises us bliss in this and in the next world; embrace ye the foot of the Caliph's throne and know ye that the state is at war with Russia, England, France, and their allies, and that these are the enemies of Islam. The Chief of the believers, the Caliph, invites you all as Moslems to join in the Holy War."

At the time Wangenheim discussed the matter with me, his chief interest seemed to be that a "Holy War" of this sort could be the quickest means of forcing England to make peace.

According to this point of view, it was really a great peace offensive. At that time Wangenheim reflected the conviction, which was prevalent in all official circles, that Germany has made a mistake in bringing England into the conflict and it was evidently his idea now that if back fires could be started against England in India, Egypt, the Sudan, and other places, the British Empire would withdraw. Even if British Mohammedans refused to rise, Wangenheim believed that the mere threat of such an uprising would induce England to abandon Belgium and France to their fate.

To be continuded tomorrow.

It would kill her husband if he knew what these two men told her

She didn't tell him—not even when one of them took her in his arms on the deck of the little ship frozen into the ice of the Arctic night. She knew she would have to fight it out by herself—and then she found an ally.

He was the terror of the northland—a giant of a dog, descended through forty generations of Eskimo huskies, but a flareback to the white man's dog that had been his ancestor. And he was white clear through!

James Oliver Curwood knows the frozen wastes. He knows women. And he knows dogs—and men. In "Wapi, the Walrus," his skill is at its height in the November GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

So is the skill of I. A. R. Wylie—the brilliant English writer who is giving GOOD HOUSEKEEPING'S readers an amazing series of wartime stories. "The Bridge Across" is in this number—what happened when a war-bride's husband was brought back—crippled beyond belief.

Get this number for these stories and for the others by Arthur Somers Roche and Kathleen Norris and for the other features by Woodrow Wilson, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Clara Savage, and Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey. Get it tonight!

FITZGERALD IS SUSTAINED BY COMMISSION

count of votes cast for this nomination in the primaries on Sept. 24, 1918.

"Because of the importance of these issues bearing upon the integrity of the election and the conduct of a public board we file this memorandum with our decision.

"The fraud alleged on the part of the Election Commissioners consisted in the obtaining of one thousand additional ballots from the State printer on the afternoon of the primary to provide for an anticipated shortage, and the delay in granting Mr. Teague an inspection at the recount of the unused ballots in an endeavor to discover fifty December ballots claimed to have been cast and not counted in Ward 5, Precinct 5. In procuring these one thousand extra ballots the Election Commissioners acted properly.

"We examined all the records of Precinct 5, Ward 5, the check list, all the ballots that had been furnished by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, both those cast and those remaining uncast, including the ballots of all the political parties, and found that no ballots were missing and that the number of ballots cast agreed with the number of names checked on the voting list as having voted.

EMERGENCY BALLOT BOX.

"Another claim of fraud was the use of an emergency ballot box in Ward 5, precinct 4. It appeared that the crank of the registering ballot box could not be found at the opening of the polls at 6 a.m., whereupon the emergency ballot box was used until 8:15 a.m., when the ballots then in the emergency box were publicly, one by one, taken out and transferred to the registering ballot box.

"The ballots cast and not cast in this precinct were counted by us, and the result checked on the voting list agreed with the total number of ballots cast. The total of ballots cast and not cast also agreed with the number of ballots furnished by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

"We find that this use of the emergency ballot box and the transfer of the ballots to the registering ballot box were not fraudulent, and they in no way affected the result of the election.

"In Ward5, Precinct 3, the cancelling device of the registering ballot box did not print the precinct number, although the cancellation in all other respects was perfect. This could not be discovered until the polls were closed and the ballot box was opened. It was claimed that the ballots in this precinct should all be rejected because of this defect. The voters who voted in this precinct cannot be disfranchised by this defect of the cancelling device.

MINOR IRREGULARITIES.

"Minor irregularities on the part of some of the precinct officers were shown, but they in no way affected the result.

"The rule of law governing us on this branch of the case is stated by Attorney-General Pillsbury in Russell's Massachusetts Election cases, page 52: 'It is a settled rule of election law that mistake or fraud of election officers shall not invalidate a vote lawfully and regularly cast, and this is a salutary rule in the interest of the public no less than of the voter.'

"Three cases of illegal voting upon the names of registered civilians were proved.

"It was alleged that seventeen illegal votes were cast upon the names of soldiers and sailors in the United States service, claimed to be absent at camps or stations so that they could not have been in Boston on the day of the primary. In five cases this has been proved. In the remaining twelve cases information of the whereabouts of these men on the day of the primary, which we have sought by direct communication with the army and navy, has not been received.

"The law governing cases of illegal voting is stated by the Supreme Court of this Commonwealth in First Parish vs. Stearns, 21 Pickering 148, and in the contested election case of Alexander vs. Doyle, Russell's Massachusetts Election Cases, page 87, the latter case decided in 1894 since the adoption of the Australian ballot system.

PROOF MUST BE COMPLETE.

"The rule in these cases is that in order to set aside the election of a person it is necessary not only to prove that fraudulent votes were cast at the election but also for whom they were cast and that the number was sufficient to change the result.

"Applying the above rule and assuming that all these were illegal votes and were all cast for John F. Fitzgerald, which has not been proved, the result would not be changed, for if all of these illegal and alleged illegal votes were taken from his total number he would still have a majority of the votes cast."

The widow also received $50,000 to use at her discretion for the benefit of relatives, friends and former employes of Mr. Stokes, and a trust fund of $50,000 is left for his brother William. There are gifts of $10,000 to Dr. John R. Mott and $15,000 to Franklin A. Gaylord, Y. M. C. A. man who represents him in work founded in France and Russia. TRY WOMAN ON CHARGE OF DISORDERLY HOUSE

That a house occupied by Mrs. Winifred Otto on Thornton street, Roxbury, was frequented by soldiers and sailors, was testified to by police officers today at a trial before Judge Fenton in the Superior Criminal Court of Mrs. Otto on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house. John Riley, a neighbor of Mrs. Otto, told the jury that he saw a woman in scant attire dancing in front of one of the windows in an upper room of the house.

DENIES BRIDE OF DAY LEAVES MILLIONAIRE, 85

New York, Oct. 29.—Reports from Connecticut that Mrs. Samuel Rundle, twenty-five-year-old bride of the eighty-five-year-old Danbury millionaire, had left his roof after twenty-four hours of married life to return to her home here were denied today by Mrs. C. C. Brown, her mother. "It must be a malicious attempt to wreck their happiness," said Mrs. Brown. "My daughter came to New York yesterday to shop and engage some servants. Another request of Mr. Magenis was that he be buried in Forest Hills Cemetery and that a plain, suitable tablet be erected over his grave. His remains were interred in Holyhood Cemetery in Brookline.

It has been learned that although Mrs. Magenis receives nothing from the estate of her late husband, she will not contest it.

ASKED MAGENIS FOR SEPARATE SUPPORT

The peculiar request made by the late James P. Magenis, prominent attorney, member of the Boston School Committee and Finance Commission, in his will, that his widow, Mrs. Mary A. Magenis, turn over to the treasurer of Massachusetts such a portion as her conscience tells her is fair of a quarter million dollar legacy, obtained for her by him as counsel, together with the fact that a separate support suit has been pending in the Norfolk County Probate Court, reveals the relations that has existed between husband and wife since they became wealthy.

On file in the Probate Court is a suit for separate support brought by Mrs. Magenis last June, in which she sought to have the courts grant her separate maintenance, charging him with cruel and abusive treatment. There has never been any action taken in this matter.

The conscience money that the testator requested that his wife turn over to the State treasurer was to swell an old age pension fund, which he created in his will by bequeathing $1,000 to the treasurer of the State. It was Magenis' belief that as his wife never paid him for the legal services rendered by him in obtaining $250,000 from her uncle's estate, that, as a matter of good conscience as his wife, she was indebted to him for a fair and reasonable fee for his long series of efforts in her behalf.

Previous to Mrs. Magenis' inheriting the fortune from her uncle's estate, the family lived in Dorchester. An elaborate home was secured in Dedham by the family. It was said to be purchased by Mrs. Magenis.

Among other things that Magenis stated in his will was that his wife have nothing to do with the education of his children. This he requested be left to his brother, John E. Magenis of North Adams. It was the desire of the testator that his children be given the usual education and be allowed to prepare for college and that each child be given the right to decide what college he or she desired to attend.

BLOCK EVERETT MAYOR IN STRIKE SETTLEMENT

In an effort to settle the strike of city laborers, Mayor Weeks of Everett recommended to the Board of Aldermen that by a system of transfers from other funds $4,000 be taken to increase the pay of the strikers from $2 to $2.50 per day. The board blocked the passage of the recommendation by referring it to the Finance Commission. The Board of Public Works said today that a few laborers had returned to work, but not enough to amount to anything.

CAMPAIGN ON TO MAKE 'L' CARS HYGIENIC

Charge Over Half of Influenza Deaths Due to Unsanitary Trolleys

Asserting that of the 4,000 influenza deaths in Boston, 2,500 would not have occurred had it not been for unsanitary conditions prevailing in the street cars, James J. Lewin of No. 58 Norwood street, Everett, has started a week's campaign to make the "L" system hygenic. He has arranged a meeting in Symphony Hall, Everett square, next Saturday night, which representatives of the State and City Boards of Health and Professor Ritchie of Worcester "Tech," as expert of the "L," will speak.

"Dr. Champion, director of hygiene of the state board of health told me that it is impossible to have sanitary conditions in cars in which passengers ride standing" said Mr. Lewin, respiratory diseases are communicable within ten fet of the afflicted person's mouth. In normal times one-seventh of the deaths in Massachusetts are due to respiratory diseases, and this year the proportion will be much greater.

"I know that out in the cemeteries of Everett there are many good citizens at rest who would today be alive and well if it were not for the unsanitary condition of the 'L' cars. Something must be done and done immediately to remedy this appalling condition of affairs. The answer of the transportation company to me had been that it was willing to remedy conditions, if I could tell them how to finance it. I have worked out a scheme for this, which I believe would be successful."

NEWTON SOCIETY WILL PRESENT "COUSIN KATE"

Representatives of Newton society who are members of The Players will present their forty-seventh dramatic production in Players' Hall, West Newton, on November 4, 5, 6 and 8. This year the play chosen is "Cousin Kate," a three-act comedy. Charles E. Hatfield, former mayor of Newton and former chairman of the Republican State Committee, will be a member of the cast.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL IS HEEDED

age. The Governor was in close touch last year with the workings of the Christmas Basket Fund and when he speaks as he does today in terms of praise of what the good this does among the poor of the city, the Governor knows whereof he speaks.

For if the great hearted of Boston do not come to the relief of the poor this year there will be little cheer and no dinner in more homes than the average reader has any idea of, on Christmas Day.

One circumstance this year, which may work to the benefit of the poor widows and children reached by this fund, is the ban placed by the United States government upon packages to be sent abroad.

This year it will be impossible to send to the men overseas the large amount of Christmas goodies which went over last December.

Your soldier boy will have to be denied, this Christmas day, the plum pudding which you had designed for him unless it be a very little one—but if you could tell him about it, don't you think he would be the first to ask you to use that effort and money to help out someone at home?

The men at the front have been suffering enough and poverty-enough in the devastated countries into which they are now penetrating to realize what it means and to want to help it if they can.

HELP POOR AT HOME.

You cannot immediately and directly help the fatherless of France and Belgium, but you can with absolute directness help a fatherless family or Boston which is perhaps in as sad a position.

Your soldier boy will have his Christmas dinner, and a good one, without your pudding, because his Uncle Samuel takes care of his boys with a prodigality which has amazed the soldiers of our Allies.

Why not, this year, leave to that beneficent uncle the welfare of your soldier and as an offering of praise that he has been spared, devote the money which you would have used for him to alleviating one of these poor widows with families of little children who are already timidly asking to be remembered on Christmas Day?

Why not do it as a peace offering? Here is peace trembling on the lips of the nations. In a few weeks, it may be, one of the greatest events in history may come and come suddenly with a man bearing a fluttering white flag out onto the waste of No Man's Land. After that the weight that has borne you down for years will be lifted. No longer will the telephone bell be a horror that may indicate bad tidings, and no longer the casualty list will confront you each day with its awful import. Your soldier, or if not yours, your friend's, will then be safe and after a few months come home to the glorious welcome which awaits him and his.

Just for that, if for no other reason, just for the thankfulness that this hideous business is almost over, will you not adopt this opportunity to show your gratitude by bringing cheer into other hearts?

The Boston AMERICAN has started this fund with a contribution of $1,000. Already several hundreds of dollars have been subscribed by generous citizens which will shortly be acknowledged.

This year the fund must be larger than ever before if an equal amount or good is to result. The raise in the price of food stuffs will make the cost of each basket nearly double what it was before the war.

BUT AT LOW PRICES.

By virtue of having handled this fund for five years the AMERICAN is able to make advantageous contracts with wholesalers to purchase the items which go into the baskets at the lowest possible rate by buying in large quantities. Those having in hand this portion of the work report that the cost per basket this year will be high, even deducting the discounts which it is possible to obtain.

Any person who wishes to make up his own basket and send it to the AMERICAN on the day before Christmas may do so, and feel sure that it will reach a deserving family who otherwise would be minus a dinner, but it is much the cheaper way to send in the money to the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund and take advantage of the wholesale prices which the paper is able to obtain.

Let us, this year, make this the largest fund in the history of the movement. Let us feel when the task is over that more people will have cause for thanksgiving than ever!

Subscribe to the Christmas Basket Fund and make at least one poor family happy on Christmas Day.

GOVERNOR McCALL URGES ALL TO GIVE FREELY TO CHRISTMAS FUND

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE BOSTON

October 23 1918.

To The Boston American:

I most heartily approve the Christmas Basket Fund with which you have been so successful since its inception. It has grown in usefulness and has been of substantial assistance to a great many of our people. Christmas is a season of the year when we look hopefully for the fulfilment of all that seems dear to us. While our attention is directed more particularly to the war and to its outcome, we must not forget the children to whom Christmas means so much; nor must we forget the widows of those who have sacrificed their all that Democracy might live.

I most strongly urge all our people to give freely to this fund. To do this generously will give us a keen feeling of satisfaction during the holiday season. We will have succeeded also in no small measure in bringing sunshine into many of the lives of our children and poor widows, for on this day of all days each home should be a bright and cheery place.

Yours very truly,
Samuel W. McCall

Above is shown a facsimile of Governor McCall's letter to the American praising the Christmas Basket Fund and asking all to give freely to the worthy charity. Your contributions will help to purchase Christmas dinners for the poor children, needy widows and other unfortunates of Greater Boston.

1,825 BISCUIT WORKERS REPRESENTED ON FLAG

A new service flag containing 1,825 stars is now displayed by the Boston branch of the National Biscuit Company in Albany street. About 15 per cent of the company's male employes are in the service. A recent order received calls for 12,000,000 packages of hard bread for Pershing's men.

WILL LEAVES $20,000 TO PHILLIPS ACADEMY

Andover, Oct. 29.—Phillips Academy receives $20,000 by the will of the late Ammi Lancashire of New York, who died September 27. The will was filed for probate in New York yesterday. Mr. Lancashire was once a student at the academy.

NORTH STATION BOWLING ALLEYS ARE DESTROYED

Fire that necessitated the sounding of two alarms destroyed the North Station bowling alleys on the second and third floors of the building at Nos. 226-228 Friend street early today. The lower floor occupied by W. Bonfanti & Co., liquor dealers, suffered considerable damage.

When the fire seemed in danger of destroying the adjoining buildings the Boston & Maine fire stations were called. A heavy fog hindered the firemen.

NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF OR A FALLING HAIR

Save your hair! Double its beauty in just a few moments

"Danderine" makes your har thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first, yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, fis exhilarating, stimulating and lifeproducing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it. If you will just try a little Danderine.—Advertisement.

The Time Is Drawing Near— Our Brave Boys are Marching on to Victory— New England Women are Helping

Millions of our men at the front mean shortage of labor at home. But more labor than ever is needed. Our war industries dare not halt. The men in the trenches must be armed, fed and clothed. The gaps in the ranks of industry are widening.

WOMEN MUST HELP WIN THE WAR by filling the industrial gap. Manufacturers realize this. They are now ready to welcome women to mill and factory. Women form the vital link in the industrial chain. Everyone must WORK FOR VICTORY.

What women will head the patriotic procession? Who will set example to her New England sisters? What leaders among our women will leave their comfortable homes for work at bench or machine?

If our industries slacken our men will fail of supplies. Their splendid sacrifices will be in vain because their women, for whom they battle, did not follow where duty called.

Marshalling the industrial power of New England womanhood in this vital work of keeping up necessary production while the men are on the firing line has proven a tremendous task.

It has required courage. It has taken devotion. And, more than that, it has taken magnetic leadership and compelling organization. Therefore, women must continue to blaze the trail to industries.

Women Will Be Needed in Industry After the War. Think of the Rehabilitation of Europe—And What We Must Supply

This is one of a series of full page appeals to the women of New England, asking them to respond to the call of our nation and enter some line of industry to help win the war.

Production MUST Be Increased
Women MUST Help
We MUST Win

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Vienna in 1864, by which Denmark gave up Prussia and Austria the duchies of Schleswig-Holstein. The Danish hatred of Prussia is understood when it is recalled that Schleswig-Holstein was originally Danish territory.

The Origin of "Abbey"

THE picturesque monasteries that were so thickly strewn throughout England and much of Europe in the Middle Ages were called abbeys, from being ruled by abbots—or abbats from abbas, Syriac for "father" as those governed by a prior were called priories.

THE ZEPPELIN'S PASSENGER

An Exciting and Romantic New Spy Serial by E. Phillips Oppenheim

The Story Up to Date

Lady Cranston, wife of a retired English naval officer living on the coast, goes to London to try to find news of her only brother, Major Felstead, a prisoner in Germany. She leaves Helen Fairclough, Felstead's fiancee, to play hostess. On her return, without word about her brother, she hears that the basket of a Zeppelin has been found near her house. The local officers are all excited about the incident. Nora, Lady Cranston's stepdaughter, finds a German hat in the bushes and brings it in.

N. E. SPORT DRIVE OFF ON HIGH

Matters in This District Are Beginning to Buzz—Many Big Events Planned

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Leave it to Greater Boston and New England sport promotors and managers, ditto sport enthusiasts, to see that this section's quota of $15,000,000 and the 50 per cent. over-subscription requested by President Wilson, in the War Work Fund campaign drive the week of November 11-18, goes boisterously buzzing over the top.

That sterling committee named to handle all sport and athletic matters for this district was to get officially started on its duties today. It has a lot to do; a terrific lot, for it aims to turn a rollicking amount into New England's $15,000,000 jackpot, and won't be satisfied if its contribution isn't a million or more.

Be it known that the sports committee, when it started to get busy on the proposition, had no intention with the War Department and quickly received the full support of Secretary Baker. The Navy Department, too, is behind the big drive. Now all the sections have organized and pretty soon sport fans will learn exactly what attractions are going to be staged; the respective dates held or stamping ground and the dates.

LOTS OF BIG EVENTS.

Locally, there will be big things galore. W. W. Roper, Princeton's athletic head, who spent last Saturday in Boston vainly trying to induce President Lowell and Dean Briggs to have a Crimson 'varsity eleven formed and meet a similar team Orange and Black at the Stadium, Saturday, November 16, let it be known up his sleeve that he'll have the plainly regretted the adverse stand taken by Harvard's heads.

Originally Roper planned that little group of college men, who first got active in the movement, would stage a Harvard-Yale game for the War Work Campaign drive. Later a Harvard-Penn contest was considered. But Harvard is to be counted out, it appears, as President Lowell and Dean Briggs do not favor the S. A. T. C. eleven engaging in any college battles this fall.

Just what will be Boston's big College game the week of the drive remains to be seen. It is up to Boston College vs. Radio School. Anyhow, Chairman Garcelon and his aides on New England's sport committee can be relied upon booking the best attractions possible.

BOXING TO DO BIT.

The indications are a gigantic boxing show will be staged at the Arena. The committee now has a clear track in putting through its plans, as with the Greb-Turner battle off for good, the Britt-Kansas, scheduled for November 12, has been advanced a week. Hence, both the Arena and Armory A. A. have no contracts standing in the way, and await orders.

George Dooley, wrestling impresario, will put on a show at the Grand Opera House, Thursday night, November 14, with a pair of big time boy toplinners; in fact, is out to arrange his banner production of the season.

Hinging with the New England committee on the job in earnest, matters ahead loom bright and rosy. The right men are at the helm; the publicity department is 13-karat efficient, and big show after big show is bound to be arranged.

Fore River Soccer Eleven Willing to Play Belgians for United War Work Fund

Fore River devotees of soccer football, and they are many, are willing to do their part in the big sport drive of the United War Work Campaign. They are planning to send their crack eleven against the Belgian team, which is expected to visit this country in the near future.

Manager J. F. Higgins of the Fore River eleven has discussed the scheme of his team and the proposed Belgian game for the big fund. His offer has been accepted by the Baughlin committee.

His offer, too, is merely one of a bunch that have come in since it was announced that New England sports were to be called on to do their bit in the drive.

PIEROTTI NAMED COACH OF TUFTS NEW ELEVEN

At Pierotti, former Everett High and Washington & Lee gridiron warrior, is Tufts' new coach. He has a big job on his hands, for only three and the Medford machine should prove the equal of any of the college S. A. T. C. eleven, as the Tufts recruit of Somerville, ever reliable end, has been elected captain.

TUBBER WHITE TO GET IN GAME WITH HINGHAM

Coach Lew Tripician of the Naval Radio School football team expects that Captain Tubber White, who was injured in last Saturday's Sunskin Island game, will be ready for this week-end's combat with Charley Garland's speedy Hingham ammunition depot machine. O. K. Cox, another hunged-up Radio star, is expected to be ready for practice tomorrow.

Newtonville Scene of Game

Newton High and Dean Academy's second team were to play at Newtonville this afternoon. Merrill Nutting, Newton's captain, is on the hunged-up list and did not plan getting into the game.

HARVARD ARMY UNIT TO HAVE SINGLE TEAM

Unable by the scarcity of candidates reporting for practice to form senior and junior army football teams, the soldiery gridiron forces at Harvard have consolidated their strength, and will present a solid front to future prospective opponents.

Coach Donovan hopes to be able to select one good eleven, with capable substitutes.

The army teams scrimmaged thirty minutes, with each outfit scoring a touchdown. Moody, substitute quarterback, a kindergarten player on Team A in good style. His teammate, Tom Murray, another of Charley Lowell's backfield men last year, and Harry Waddle, captain at Watertown High in 1917, put up fair games.

Martin, Rosenberg and Brown, former members of the Walker squad, and Ratcliffe, an old Oak Park performer, were behind the rushes for Team B. Young Leonard of Clinton Country Day last Fall, and A. J. Moore, right end on the 1917 Weston High eleven, with new army men to report.

Harvard's naval team is plugging along under its own steam, and Hoffman and Phillips are out making the other candidates for the team hustle. Ensign H. H. Dadmun, who captained the 1916 Harvard eleven, coached the guards and centres, and Jimmy O'Brien, star of Holy Cross the same season, gave instruction to the backs and kickers.

The first contest between the Crimson's army and navy teams will probably take place Saturday afternoon

Packy McFarland, the stocky fighting Nelson and is willing to post $5,000 on the side that he can beat Hat in either a twenty-five-round or forty-five-round battle. (For some reason or other this offer was never accepted by the Swede. Forty-five-round fights were to Nelson's liking, too.)

Tommy Quill of Brockton and Young Loughrey of Philadelphia will meet again at the Armory A. A. on November 19.

Bartley Williams and George Rothner wrestled at the Columbia last night. Williams, weighing about twenty pounds over the limit, threw the lightweight champion, agreed to throw Rothner twice in an hour and to concede the match if George secured one fall. Williams got the first fall in twenty-three minutes and Rothner secured the next fall in fifteen minutes.

BIG SQUAD OUT FOR FOOTBALL AT TUFTS

More than fifty candidates for the Tufts S. A. T. C. football team have reported for practice at the Tufts Athletic Field. Until this week the team has been without a coach, but now Albert Perrotti, well known in this vicinity as interscholastic centre at Everett High and star centre at Washington and Lee, has been named and is on the job.

Frank W. Lincoln of Somerville, an end on the varsity last year, has been selected as captain.

With the material available it is expected that the Tufts team will be the equal of any of the college S. A. T. C. teams. Manager Earle Conn is arranging a schedule which will be announced in a few days. The following are the most promising men on the squad: Lincoln, Colucci, Galloway, Cahoon, Enander, Segal, Adams, Batta, Martin, Fraier, Spear, Morgan, Marchia, Cleary, Harrington, Weafer, Blair, Finell, Leland, Chiado, Frankel, Sabine and Cassavelli.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

By RINGSIDE

MATCHMAKER JACK LEONARD of the Marlboro Driving Club, has arranged a spicy card for Friday night. The headliner will be Billy Carney of New Bedford and Dusty Reid of Fall River.

JOHNNY GRAY, Battle Chelsea scrapper, and Gerard Gilbert of Lawrence, meet in the semi-final. Other bouts will bring Eddie Kennedy of Chelsea and Ed Sasso of Lynn, and Mike Dowd of Framingham and Buddy Dolan of Lawrence.

* * *

JOHNNY DONOVAN and Soldier (Young) Reno collided in their initial go on the card by Matchmaker Lewis Sunday afternoon at the Dudley Theatre and the scrap was a corker. Both boys are of the very best weight in this section.

* * *

JACK BRITTON and Jimmy Howard have signed up for eight rounds at Newark, N. J., November 7.

JOE WOODMAN is now an American soldier today. Yes, he's willing to have Sam Langford go at it with Uncle Sam's fighting host from now until Mattie Baldwin hands him a decision. Joe has been accepted by the Knights of Columbus committee.

His offer, too, is merely one of a bunch that have come in since it was announced that New England sports were to be called on to do their bit in the drive.

BRITT-KANSAS BATTLE IS MOVED UP A WEEK

Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford and Rocky Kansas, Buffalo lightweight, who gave Johnny Dundee a stiff tussle here last month, meet at the Arena next Thursday night. They were originally hooked to battle November 12, but with Harry Greb, Pittsburgh middleweight, entered in the navy last Spring, being ordered to Newport, his scrapping engagement with Kansas is off for a week and the lightweight battle has been moved up a week.

Dundee and Callahan Top Spicy Program at Armory A. A.

CARD AT ARMORY A. A.

Main event—Johnny Dundee of New York vs. Frankie Callahan of Brooklyn, 4 twelve rounds.

Semi-final—Johnny Buckley of South Boston vs. Jimmy Noonan of Dorchester, eight rounds.

Second preliminary—Burt Jones of Revere vs. Willie Green of the South End, six rounds.

Curtain-raiser—Young Leonard of Clinton vs. Frank Dwyer of the North End, six rounds.

Referee—Maffitt Flaherty and Larry Conley. Starting time—8:15 p. m.

By RINGSIDE.

The Armory A. A. gets in line tonight with one of its real cards. Johnny Dundee and Frankie Callahan, lightweights, of rapid-fire reputations, are the principals in the twelve-round windup event, with Johnny Noonan of Dorchester, and Johnny Buckley of South Boston, hooking up in the semi-final at eight rounds.

It's but a waste of space taking up Dundee's end of the case, as every one who follows boxing knows what Johnny can do. There may possibly be a few, though, who haven't a line on Callahan.

For their benefit, I'll say, then a little information, that he is a fighter with a great big "if," a dangerous customer at all times. If you doubt it, step up to the Arena and see.

The two Johns, Noonan and Buckley, are good for a corking preliminary bout. The boys fought before, with Johnny Noonan on hand for landing the honors over Johnny (that's Buckley). Noonan didn't have much of a matchmaking job, and Buckley expects to even up matters this time.

Burt Jones presents little boxer from Revere, a very satisfactory performer, and one who is always interesting for Willie Green of the South End.

Young Leonard, stocky Chelsea youth, and Frank Dempsey of the North End, are to mix over blessed with cleverness, but as a rule, a bit of the aggressive type, the fans should see some fun.

REMMITT IS SLATED TO COACH COMMERCE TEAM

William Remmitt, former Revere High coach, is mentioned as Edward P. (Skip) Sherlock's successor as High School of Commerce's football coach. Sherlock was called to order of Frank Thompson, superintendent of Boston schools, as a result of not following out orders during the influenza ban. While Rindge also wants Remmitt, now teacher of science at Commerce, it is expected he will accept the offer to turn gridiron tutor at his school.

Willie Hoppe in Hub for Series of Games for Red Cross

Willie Hoppe, world's billiard champion for the past fifteen years, arrived in Boston today for his Red Cross exhibition matinees with George Sisson, little-holler in the days when Willie was too young to lift a cue. The nonpareil of the green baize is to engage in five matches here.

Hoppe and Sisson play 600 points at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon at the city club, and 600 more in the evening.

Thursday they meet at the Engineers' Club, and Friday and Saturday at the A. A. A. A. Only Club matches are open to the public, but admission will be charged all those others, with every cent going to the Greatest Mother of Them All.

Next Tuesday Hoppe goes to Camp Devens and gives a free exhibition for the soldier boys. Returning to Boston, he will play a series of matches, with the proceeds being devoted to the athletic paraphernalia fund of the Ayer cantonment.

Peculiar Jewish Charity

It Doesn't Seem to Know the Difference Between a Christian and a Jew

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

All kinds of human beings give to charity. Ninety-nine per cent. are proud of it, and like to have it known.

The criminal in the condemned cell contributes something to the widow of the man who goes to the electric chair ahead of him.

Devout believers in any particular religion will give freely to the charity or to any cause officially indorsed by that religion.

The man who believes nothing in particular, or who denies everything, often contributes freely to charity.

There are many kinds of charity, many ways of giving.

Last Saturday Mr. Billikopf of New York, speaking in Chicago in favor of all the war charities—Red Cross, Young Men's Christian Association, Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare Board—used a quotation from an old Jewish poet. We recommend it to all of those that would call themselves charitable:

"IF I WON'T FIGHT MY OWN BATTLES, WHO WILL? IF I WILL FIGHT MY OWN BATTLES ONLY, WHO AM I?"

This means that he who does not fight for himself can't expect anybody else to fight for him. But on the other hand he who fights ONLY for himself, selfishly, is NOTHING.

It can be truly said to the credit of the Jews here and elsewhere that in their charities they live up to the saying of their old poet. They quote it themselves and others also. One brief statement will prove it to you:

The Protestants and Catholics of this country are, of course, a thousand times as rich as all the Jews combined, and richer.

Yet the Jews of this country have given to Protestant and Catholic charities at least a thousand times as much as all the Protestants and Catholics have given to the Jewish charities.

This is not written by a Jew, as readers perhaps know, and is not said in criticism of Protestants or Catholics.

A man may do as he pleases. It is mentioned because it is truth and ought to put to shame those that ignorantly and stupidly attack the Jews, not realizing their good qualities, hating them with the inherited hate of ignorance and prejudice.

It may also be said for the Jews who give more to others a thousand times over than others give to them, that in their charities they use up in "expenses" less than half the amount that other charities use in the same way.

That explains among other things the fact that Jews are not in the poorhouse. They give more widely. Their charity is spent more efficiently.

Wartime Is a Period of Experiment

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

The War Labor Policies Board announces the creation of a commission to consider labor conditions in various cities, particularly conditions of housing, education, recreation, the conduct of public utilities and sanitation. The idea is, of course, to recommend the adoption of such measures as will keep working people, both men and women, comfortable, healthy, and, if possible, happy while the war lasts.

An excellent idea. But why limit it to the continuance of the war?

This war is going to cost us enough in blood and treasure and misery. If there is any permanent advantage that we can reap from it in the name of common sense and of humanity let us conserve it.

There will be many such advantages if timid or ultra conservative people do not insist on limiting the operation of every good expedient to the period of the war.

We have already secured the government operation of railroads, telegraphs and telephones, but all the reactionary interests are very insistent that this system shall continue only while the war lasts, and that thereafter the public utilities shall be handed back to their former owners to be used again for private exploitation.

We are in a fair way of smashing the power of the saloon and putting an end to the malign activities of booze. But again, all the legislation which Congress enacts to that end is limited to the period of the war. The lawmakers evidently think that we can't fight booze and the Boches at the same moment, but that as soon as the Boches have surrendered to us WE must surrender to booze.

We are inclined to believe that many of these timid promoters of desirable reforms for the period of the war only are going to be surprised and perhaps disappointed when the end of that conflict shall have arrived.

Revolutions do not go backward.

Many reforms, economic or social, that have been undertaken as war measures will not be abandoned if they have proved themselves advantageous to the general good, when the people shall have greater opportunity to enjoy their fruits than they can possibly have in wartime.

However, we applaud all these wartime experiments that make for health, efficiency and social justice. During decades of peace the defenders of everything as it was could not be persuaded to consider them. We may yet learn as much from this period of strife as the Germans bid fair to learn.

THE MAN WHO IS "MISUNDERSTOOD"

When a married man tells a woman that "his wife does not understand him," so he prefers to talk to her, it is time for that woman to let him know that she is not to pursue any friendship on these terms.

The man who makes such a statement is not playing fair to his wife. If he can't play square with his wife do you think he is going to play square with any woman?

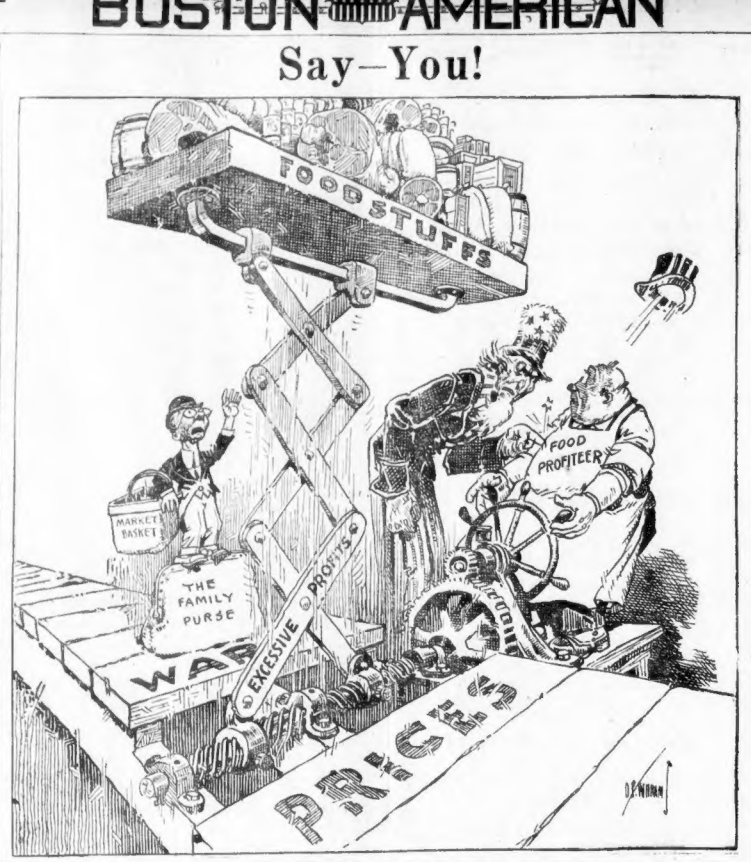
Naturally, some women are flattered to think that a good business man appreciates that their intelligence is above the ordinary.

But if they can't see through such a statement as this they are not in the class he pretends to think they are.

The married man who seeks to make an impression on a woman often puts out just such a line of talk.

"He is not understood," or "he does like to talk with women who are different."

Say—You!



LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Elevated Board

The following is an interesting letter worth consideration by the Board of Trustees of the Elevated:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I see, according to the papers, that you had a conference with the Boston Elevated in regard to relieving the congestion during this epidemic, by asking them to put on more cars. They said they could not, as they did not have enough men to run the ordinary schedule. This is absolutely untrue. My husband is a brakeman on the Boston Elevated and gets through every night at 4.30 p. m., and would gladly work overtime if he could get the work. The company always has run a seven-car train in the morning and in the evening an eight-car train. If they could not handle the people with these cars, how could they take care of them with a five-car train. My husband also informs me that there are twelve sets of men, three men to a set, at Dudley street and fourteen sets of men at Sullivan square that would be willing to help out the company. The company never had the proper spirit to solve congestion on the road, and never will until the State takes hold in earnest.

I have sent a similar letter to the Mayor of Boston and would like very much to have this published.

MRS. MARY REARDON.

Anti-Influenza Vaccine

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

The AMERICAN has shown itself the champion in all matters of public concern and interest by many worthy editorials and other useful and interesting articles. As a reader of your paper for many years, I have come to know that you were especially devoted to the question of public health. I, therefore, feel assured of your co-operation.

Yes, indeed, we owe much to those who have toiled hard to discover the causes of this influenza, and much more to those who sacrificed their time and means to check its spread. In spite of this energetic campaign we have been robbed of more than one friend, yet for the many that have been saved from the clutches of death we are and should be thankful. However, there is yet a lesson to be derived from that past misery, and that is "that an ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure."

In other words, the essential thing to do now, since there have been good results from the vaccines discovered, would be to have a general inoculation, similar to that inaugurated in Chicago. Such a preventive measure would be a safeguard against the repetition of that wholesale mortality that has taken place in the first outbreak and which has cost us more than four thousand lives. For what is there to stop or prevent the return of the epidemic, now that the public places have all been wide opened again? Practically nothing. It is true that an order is issued not to allow spitting, etc., in public places. The police would do all they could, but COULD they? The sneezer and cougher are to be deemed as criminals, but of what use is it to us, when the sneezer has already committed the "crime" and so, while he is being put out of the movie or school or store, the germs are behind him doing the intrenching in your mouth, nose or lungs. Is this not like locking up the barn after the horse has been stolen? It is apparent then that the next thing, the best thing and the only thing to do is to order a general inoculation of each and every person in the city of Boston and its vicinity. If Chicago could do it, why can't we? Will you at least be kind enough to print the addresses of the hospitals where vaccination is conducted now, whether this letter be printed or not.

With best wishes for the continuance and success of your valuable daily and Sunday editions.

ABRAHAM C. ROME.

The AMERICAN is informed that the Tufts Medical School, which during the height of the epidemic was inoculating applicants with an anti-influenza vaccine, has now discontinued the service and that no hospital has taken it up. It is stated, however, that any physician can now perform the operation for patients who request it, and that the Boston Health Unit, No. 77 Bowdoin street, will vaccinate free of charge persons who apply between the hours of 9 and 11 a. m.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

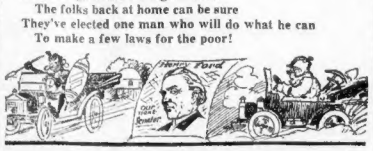
Uncle Henry

In the dawn of the day of the automobile
The rich man, with chest-swelling pride.
Went scorching along past the envious throng,
While the poor man stepped nimbly aside.
"It is always the way," said the poor man, said he,
"The rich man's a fortunate cuss;
Sure riches have wings when they purchase such things,
But nothing like that is for us!"

And then Henry Ford went to work in his shop
And turned out a motor in which
The poor man rode by with a sneer in his eye
For the lumbering cars of the rich.
"Forget them Rolls-Royces and Locards," says he,
As he hustles along the street;
"Them big limousines is expensive machines,
But my Ford has a lot of them beat!"

They are scattered all over creation today,
You'll find 'em from Cape Town to Nome,
And the lowly thatched cot without one in the lot
Doesn't really look much like a home.
And every owner among the whole crowd
Will cry with expansive delight
That his car is a bear, and will cheerfully swear
That old Uncle Henry's all right!"

And now the old gentleman's first job is done,
His useful career to complete
He may shortly go down to the Capital town
And sit in a Senator's seat.
And if he gets into the toga of state
The folks back at home can be sure
They've elected one man who will do what he can
To make a few laws for the poor!



Here's Luck to Her.

The Kaiser's troops apparently have coppered Horace Greeley's well-known admonition.

Base Ingratitude.

So many statesmen spurn the ladder by which they climbed. Mr. Roosevelt, for example, is now denouncing the "clicking typewriters."

Useless.

We would suggest government ownership of the Hohenzollerns to Germany, if we could think of any purpose the Hohenzollerns could be put to.

BISMARCK AND THE PEACE OF 1871

By Morton Birge

THE German military autocracy parleys for an armistice. It protests that it represents the German people. It sees the handwriting on the wall of war and seeks to bargain for the future before its military machine is shattered.

But how does Germany treat a conquered enemy? How did she act toward France in the long-drawn peace preliminaries and final peace treaty of the Franco-Prussian War?

Otto Eduard Leopold, Prince von Bismarck, Germany's Iron Chancellor, was the Teuton spokesman through those negotiations.

He forced harsh terms, including the cession of Alsace-Lorraine, a billion-dollar indemnity and irksome occupational restrictions until the indemnity should be paid.

Demanded Guarantees

Above all, Bismarck demanded again and again that Germany must have a guarantee of an enduring peace. He insisted on negotiators of full authority. He complained bitterly of delays, as advantageous to the enemy. He denounced the destruction of property and found fault with the French newspaper propaganda, as he deemed it.

The voice of Bismarck was that of arrogant, dominating, domineering Prussia. Bismarck's words through those negotiations of 1870 and 1871 make illuminating reading now.

In 1900 Sidney Whitman produced a book entitled "Conversations With Prince Bismarck," as collected by Heinrich von Poschinger of Germany.

Herr von Poschinger was for many years privy councillor to the Reichsamt des Innern. Mr. Whitman says in the introduction that he was the only man of letters since Heinrich von Sybel, the historian, who had free access to Prussia's official records.

In other words, Prussia saw fit to allow these secret reports of the peace negotiations to be made public.

As Propaganda

It was undoubtedly meant by Germany as a part of desirable propaganda to extol Bismarck and show his high statesmanship.

Prussianism never suspected then the fierce light that the present war was to shed upon "Kultur."

This article does not purport to be so much an account of all the peace arguments as it does to show Prussia, as voiced by Bismarck, mercilessly stripping a gallant foe.

Chief dates in the Franco-Prussian War will be useful in this discussion, as follows:

July 19, 1870—Napoleon III., Emperor of France, declared war on Germany.

Sept. 1, 1870—Battle of Sedan.

Sept. 2, 1870—Surrender of Napoleon and his army at Sedan.

Sept. 4, 1870—Proclamation of the French republic.

Sept. 19, 1870—Commencement of siege of Paris by Germans.

Jan. 28, 1871—Surrender of Paris, signing of armistice.

March 1, 1871—Occupation of Paris by German troops.

May 10, 1871—Peace of Frankfort, ratifying Versailles preliminaries.

The iron hand of Germany toward a conquered foe showed itself through Bismarck when he met after the battle of Sedan the French generals empowered to negotiate the surrender of the French army.

General Wimpffen of France asked what terms the King of Prussia was disposed to offer. Von Moltke replied briefly: "All the troops, with their arms and baggage, will be made prisoners; the officers will retain their arms as mark of respect."

Terms Too Hard

General Wimpffen protested these terms as too hard. Von Moltke would concede nothing. Then Bismarck spoke at length. He included this statement in his remarks:

"You will never be able to forgive us Sedan. If we made peace now, you would resume the war in five or ten years, as soon as you thought you were strong enough; that would be all the thanks we could expect from the French nation. Our nation is the opposite of yours—honest and peaceable, not consumed with a lust of conquest, and asking only for peace."

"The King Reigns," but—
How Long Will He Reign?
An East Side Operator.
A Princeton Professor.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Give it time and a sound political maxim will win. Thiers, the French statesman, defying monarchy at a dangerous time, put at the head of his editorial column in Le National this motto:

"THE KING REIGNS, BUT DOES NOT GOVERN."

That statement soon became truth in every European kingdom except Prussia and Russia.

In a Reichstag debate on January 24, 1883, Prince Bismarck, defending the right of the Prussian King to reign, said: "The maxim: 'The King Reigns but does not govern,' does not apply to Germany, and the expression, ministerial responsibility, is equally absurd."

Today you learn that the motto of Thiers has at last reached Prussia. The King and Emperor has lost control of the army, his war-making machine. He reigns but does not govern, and the question now is "How long will he reign?"

In Russia, the Czar neither reigns nor governs. He lies in the ground, put there by Mr. Trotzky, recently an operator in a factory on the East Side of New York City.

A New York garment worker rules Russia and destroys the Czar.

And a professor from Princeton College, now President of the United States, tells the German Kaiser on what terms he can have peace.

"He hath lifted up the humble" with a vengeance.

Germany wants to know just what can be done in the way of an armistice.

This would seem merely another of the many questions and answers, but you know that Colonel House is in Europe, you read that Balfour and Lloyd George have started for Versailles. It seems probable that the ending is to be arranged on the spot where Bismarck and the King he made Emperor negotiated the peace with France after the war of 1870.

Bismarck, if his ghost could come back, sit in the Reichstag, read the papers, and see grown old the face of the young Kaiser that threw him overboard, would know that war in the long run does not pay.

It destroys the innocent, sets back civilization, and is preferable neither to the vanquished nor the victor. Bismarck took from France in cash five thousand million francs, and in human blood millions of gallons. This war has taken from Germany more money than that every month for four years, and more blood. It will take back Alsace-Lorraine and, probably, take away the German colonies.

The President of the United States serves all humanity and the future of the human race on every foot of the earth's surface, including Germany, when he demands that this war be ended in a fashion to make permanent peace possible. There is nothing in war but loss for humanity.

Everybody apparently speaks his mind in Germany now, without fear of the censor. One man invites the Kaiser to abdicate, Liebknecht, Socialist, let out of prison, demands a republic without loss of time.

Maximilian Harden, the Jewish writer, who has been expressing his opinion all along, apparently fearless of consequence, says this: "We (Germany) sit today on the ruins of thirty years of Hohenzollern politics."

Germany is paying a big price for the Hohenzollerns and their day of glory. But in the life of a nation, thirty years is not long. France endured the squandering and the wars of Louis the Fourteenth for seventy-two years. He mounted the throne at the age of five and died at seventy-seven. France endured Louis the Fifteenth and more than twenty years of Louis the Sixteenth, but when the time came to free herself, she did the job thoroughly.

For the Hohenzollerns to be checked suddenly in their plans and progress is not of new experience.

Frederick the Great had his own way and died, and soon Napoleon was condescendingly permitting Prussia to keep a few thousand soldiers under arms when the Prussian Queen humbly requested it because it was necessary "for the dignity and protection of the Royal Family." Napoleon's original intention was to let Prussia have no soldiers at all.

The resourceful Prussians kept the army small, as Napoleon ordered, but constantly took new men into the army and turned them out again as fast as they were taught, thus training a great number of men and having them ready for war when wanted, although not in uniform.

Any plan to put the Hohenzollerns out of business permanently must be very drastic, and without loopholes, which President Wilson well knows.
